

Sanctions Policy

Introduction

ISP Education approves training providers to deliver, assess and quality assure one or more ISP Education qualifications. ISP Education will support training providers with information, external quality assurance visits and access to training events. Part of the ISP Education quality assurance process is to manage the compliance of training providers against the approval criteria through the use of sanctions.

ISP Education monitor approved training providers performance in delivering their responsibilities through the activities of External Quality Assurers (EQA). EQA's complete a quality assurance visit and related activities and feedback to training providers using reports. Feedback includes actions that must be taken to maintain approved training providers status and recommendations for improvement.

The risks involved with this process relate to training providers not acting on action plans and as a result not complying with the requirements of approved training providers status. To manage this risk ISP Education, require action plans to address non-compliance issues and may impose a sanction (a restriction) where training providers do not comply. The sanctions are set out below and include restrictions to registration, assessment and certification of one or more qualifications delivered by the training provider.

This sanctions policy must be referred to by EQA's to assist them in making an appropriate judgement on whether a non-compliance issue will result in a recommendation or an action. This policy covers all ISP Education approved training providers and the qualifications they deliver.

ISP qualifications are nationally recognised and regulated by Office of the Qualifications and Examinations Regulator (Ofqual) for England and Northern Ireland - <https://www.gov.uk/government/organisations/ofqual>

Responsibilities

The training provider has the responsibility to maintain the requirements of its approval with ISP Education.
